Danielle Chapman is a poet and nonfiction writer who has taught in the English Department at Yale University since 2013. She currently teaches Shakespeare and the Craft of Writing Poetry, a hybrid literature/ creative writing course that pairs poetry from Shakespeare's plays with contemporary poems.

Her memoir, Holler: A Poet Among Patriots (2023) and her second book of poems, Boxed Juice (forthcoming, 2024) are published by Unbound Edition Press. Her debut poetry collection, Delinquent Palaces, was published by Northwestern University Press in 2015.

Danielle lives in Hamden, CT, with her husband, Christian Wiman; their twin daughters, Eliza and Fiona; and their rescue dachshund, Rosie.
